JANUARY.

1 Wednesday.

Embarqué à 6 heures du matin sur le bateau à vapeur Isabél, Capitaine Rollins. The Morning was so gloomy and foggy as to detain us for nearly three hours. At last we left the harbour, passing the Fort which had nearly proved so fatal to us a few days past, and went on tolerably well for the rest of day. It blew rather fresh.

2. Thursday.

Nothing striking was to be seen, but we all felt a sensible change in the temperature which was so much milder. I forgot to mention that we stopped yesterday afternoon at some 28 Miles from Savannah where a Steamer came to join us. Between reading and playing - the different meals (by no means first rate) we beguiled the time away; Burke
